I am an IT professional (now retired) and have been in the computer field for over 30 years.

I urge you to end the DOJ/Microsoft stand off as soon as possible. The terms already agreed to by most parties to the suit are fair and just. Those wanting to continue are doing so for their own ends - mostly dislike of the Microsoft success,

I choose to buy and run Microsoft software because it is better, not because it is forced upon me. AOL et al are attempting to win in court what they could not win in the market place. In addition, the question appears to be moot. AOL purchased Netscape yet did not include it in their latest version of AOL - version 7.0 - choosing to bundle MS Internet Explorer instead.

The entire affair is little more than a tempest in a teapot
